The ARFSTEN Family

We have been able to trace the Arfsten family in a direct paternal line back to Ketel Frudden. Yes, that is correct. In the olden days a man's children took their father's first name as their surname, adding a letter or letters to indicate "son of". As for instance, John Peterson's son Robert would be Robert Johnson (John's son).

We will now trace the Arfsten family from:

1. Ketel Frudden

who was born in 1595 and died some time after 1640. He married in 1625

Kerrin Harken

Ketel Frudden is known to have had at least one son: Also: Oluf Ketels b. 1640 Dunsum m. 1676 to

377 Hancock Street

He commenced business there November 2, 1900, succeeding Henry A. Mehldau, paying for the business $3800 of which $2200 was cash, the balance being secured by chattel mortgage. When interviewed in March 1903 he claimed that the mortgage had been paid in full. Formerly worked for others in the same line.

He now states verbally that he considers his investment in stock and fixtures, including horse, and wagon worth about $4000, outstanding accounts good, between $1500 and $2000 owes between $600 and $700 for merchandise, insurance $3000 and pays a monthly rent of $60.

He has a nicelyted up, well stocked store and believed doing a fair trade. Is under(stood) to have some cash in savings bank and figures regarding business investment would be accepted as being substantially correct. He deals principally with three or four houses in the trade who report selling him his reasonable wants and report payments as being fairly pr(ompt.) (H 3 1/2) C..E..

Bruning Genealogy

As recorded in twelve (12) handwritten pages, undated, from the records of Ada Arfsten. Contained in a brown "mail safe" envelope signed A.H. Arfsten and imprinted The Press Association Compilers, Inc., 17 Madison Avenue, New York. Transcribed 12/21/99 by Richard Renner. Barbara Klein believed the text was written by Minnie Bruning (older sister of Henriette) or someone from Minnie's family.

This family is of very ancient date and eminent degree. Miles (the nephew and executor of the celebrated Robert Glover, Somerset Herald), states that Hugh le Brun, Earl of the marches of Aquitaine, and Lord of Lusignan and Valence, in Paicton, married Isabel, daughter and heir of Aymer, Earl of Angouleme, relict of King John (1199-1216 - aged 49 years, reigned 17 years; note by Ada Arfsten), and whose children were advanced to honors and preferments by their half brother, King Henry III (1216-1272 - aged 65 years, reigned 56 years; note by Ada Arfsten). Geffery, the son of Josce de Brune, in the time of Henry III, held the third part of a Knight's fee of Ralph de Gousele. Gamel le Brun in the time of Henry I had a grant from Waldieve, son of Gospatric, Earl of Dunbar, of the Lordships of Bothill, Beaumont, Glasson, Drumbugh and Bowness, in the Ormesne of Allerdale, below Derwent, and for a long time the posterity of Gamel inherited these possessions. Richard le Brun owned them and then Robert le Brun, his son. At length it fell to another Richard le Brun and his family of whom Robert of Drumbugh Castle was Sheriff of Cumberland and one of the Knights of said county. Of this name also was Richard le Brun who married Albreda daughter of Walter de Cormeiles, a Baron in the counties of Hereford and Gloucester whose lands were granted at the time of the conquest. He had issue John le Brun, who was co-heir with Walter de Cormeiles. He was succeeded by another John le Brun, who with Margery his wife was owner of the Manor of Tadynton, of the village of Ballynhope, and 15 free tenants in Cleyhangre, in the county of Hereford. But the principal person of this name who attained to parliamentary distinction was Sir William le Brun, Knight, who in the reign of Edward I (1272-1307 - aged 68, reigned 35 years; (note by Ada Arfsten) had a grant of the manors of Fardingbridge and Rownore, in Hampshire; and of Randolveston in the county of Dorset, and held a license for free warren in Midgham, Rerley and Hants. He married Isolde, daughter of Philip Rokesle of Okendon, in Essex, and his heir. She was one of the maids of honor to Queen Eleanor, wife of Edward I. He died leaving Maurice de Brune his son and heir, who became a person of considerable note and had summons to Parliament among the barons of the realm in the reign of Edward II (1307-1327 -aged 43, reigned 20 years; note by Ada Arfsten) and Edward III (1327-1377, aged 65 years, reigned 50 years; note by Ada Arfsten) and had extensive estates in the counties of Southampton, Dorset, and Essex. He married Maud, daughter and heir of Sir Philip Rokelle, Knight, and greatly augmented his estate thereby.
